

No Greater Love

Dr. Ronnie Wolfe – August 23, 2018

No greater love can e'er be known
Than God extended from his throne
To send his Son on earth to die;
This love to show the reason why.

From eons past God's love divine
Reached o'er the time, his heart to mine
In love he knew me long ago;
In love he drew me as a foe.

And as a foe I shunned his love,
Blasphemed his name in courts above,
Denied the Gospel message giv'n,
And thrust my fist at God in Heav'n.

So gracious did his love pass by
To woo my soul lest I should die.
Love extended, grace put forth
To change my heart and give it worth.

Oh, love divine that caught my soul
To make this fallen sinner whole;
Oh, the love that keeps my heart,
Gives comfort, rest in every part.

How can I, then, despise his love,
To mar his image from above,
To give my mind to a world of sin,
When his love so gracious lives within?

Let me sell my heart to thee
And may my love forever be
In tune with his great love brought down
To save my soul with solemn sound.

Sweet song of love, my heart sings on
As I commit to him my song.
And wait for that in yonder sky
That he has promised by and by.
